As we all stay put at home amidst the coronavirus pandemic, we've had to get creative about incorporating nature into our lives, especially if we don't have the luxury of a backyard or live in a rural area. First, we took some virtual tours of Southern botanical gardens. Then, we eHiked our way along the Grand Canyon with this immersive experience. Now, we're pleased to have learned that The Naples Beach Hotel & Golf Club has launched a live beach cam to allows folks at home to soak up some gorgeous oceanfront views all day long from wherever you live.

“We know how much our guests love the stunning skyscape and spectacular sunsets on our beach, so we wanted to share the news that everyone can view the sunsets from home, until they are able to visit in person,” said Jason Parsons, the property's general manager.

To tune into the live stream, click here, or watch below. For those hoping to catch a sunrise or sunset over the Gulf of Mexico, you can check out the daily timetables for Naples here. Even just watching the peaceful waves foam up onto the shore during the daytime is enough to make our harried hearts feel that much calmer. We'll definitely be standing by for sunset.

WATCH: You Can Help During the Coronavirus Crisis with These Virtual Volunteer Opportunities

We'd love to hear from you: During this difficult time, what are some things that you're doing to incorporate a bit of zen into your day? Are you all about virtual tours of the great outdoors? Have you taken a twirl at meditation or yoga? Is cooking your salvation? Share with us your favorite quarantine activities.

For now, see you at the beach for sunset.
